Treasures of the Yunnan Forests Arrive to Cuisine Cuisine Seasonal Menu of Six Cantonese Delights with Magnificent Mushrooms

10 July 2017, Hong Kong: Known for their medicinal properties and fascinating, inimitable flavor adding those sought-after earthy notes to Chinese cuisine, fresh Yunnan mushrooms are in season. Cooked to perfection with utmost respect to the freshness and quality of the ingredients the new time-limited menu by Chef Edwin Tang at Cuisine Cuisine at The Mira inspired with the riches of the Yunnan forests offers a range of 6 versatile dishes featuring selected few types of fungi including plump maitake, tender morels, and beautiful cordyceps flowers to define the taste of his latest culinary creations.

Among the highlight dishes, fans of Cantonese haute cuisine may discover an earthy combination of sautéed M9 Australian Wagyu beef chuck with black termite mushroom and garlic, decadent baked lobster with fresh porcini & portobello in black pepper, as well as a nourishing winter melon soup with sliced conch, honey locust fruit and matsutake praised for their distinctive, spicy-clean aroma and meaty firm texture.

Available for two months only from 17 July till 17 September at dinner (6pm - 10:30pm), and starting from HK$228 per dish the dinner menu complements an extensive a la carte selection revamped earlier this spring, and Chef Edwin's set dinner menu of his showcase dishes with enticing wine pairings by the restaurant's sommelier.

- Deep-fried white maitake and Bombay duck ($228)
- Winter melon soup with matsutake, sliced conch and honey locust fruit ($828)
- Baked lobster with fresh porcini and portobello mushroom in black pepper ($288)
- Flamed chicken with morels and onions ($368)
- Sautéed M9 Australian Wagyu beef chuck with black termite mushroom and garlic ($528)
- Steamed pork with cordyceps flower in lotus leaf ($298)

All prices are subject to 10% service charge.
